itons conducted on a perfectly sale basis.

The Washinston Loan and Trust Company has a cash capital of one million dollars and nearly 800 stockholders.

Its board of directors numbers twenty-five.

It was organized to act as executor, administrator, and do a seneral trust business, carrying out the wishes of courts and individuals.

It pays interest on deposits and pays interest on deposits and pays interest on deposits and pays interest on deposits. It has erected a building which for security, solidity and convenience, as well as general architectural effect, far surpasses any other business building in Washington, and at a cost of half a million of dollars.

Known vs. Unknown Quantities. An extensive, experienced and liberal advertiser, writing on the ethics of business, very pertinently says:

The position assumed by some publications, that they will make no claim nor statement of circulation, is wholly wrong and indefensible. It is as if I were to order potatoes of my green grocer, and in reply to my inquiry as to how many my dollar will buy, he assures me that is something which I have no right to know or to inquire, but that he will send me a dollar's worth; but, I ask, "Is it a peck, a bushel or a barrell" "That," he replies, "is our private business; it is something which you have no right to know; give me your dollar and I will send you some polatoes-in fact, what I regard as a dollar's worth." In the case of the grocer, the law says that if he claims to sell me a bushel he must deliver a bushel; to deliver less is fraud, and his measures must be officially sealed. But the periodical certain amount of goods, may deliver but half the quantity, and I livered his goods or not, nor have I the means of finding out, or redress if I believe he has not.

The attention of the public is directed to the fact that THE STAR isn't the kind of a paper described above. It doesn't ask those who deal with it to guess at what they are getting, or to do business as boys used to trade knives,— "unsight unseen." It states its exact circulation every week, allows its press rooms and circulation books to be examined by any one having an interest therein, and it will make adrectness of its statements as to extent and character of circulation.

The Washington Critic suspended publication last night and the property held in the name of the company passed into the hands of a receiver appointed by the Equity Court on the application of Mr. Richard Weightman, the editor of the paper and one of the stockholders of the company. The statements made in the papers filed in court tell of what seemed to be a hopeless effort to make the paper pay.

have legal steps taken to settle the affairs of the company.

At a meeting of the stockholders yesterday afternoon the latter course was decided upon. Mr. Weightman's suit was filed late in the afternoon, together with the answer of the company. Mr. Henry E. Davis was appointed receiver by Judge Hagner, and his bond of $25,000, with Messrs. Robert O. Holtzman and William Galt as sureties, beingsapproved, he at once took charge of the property. Mr. Davis will simply take charge of the property and not continue the business. If Mr. Davis had any desire to experiment in journalism with the paraphernalia at his disposal he would be restrained from carrying it into effect by an express provision in the order issued by Judge Hagner appointing him as receiver.

MR. WEIGHTMAN'S SUIT. Mr. Weightman's bill, filed in court by Mr.

H. E. Davis, as his solicitor, names the Washington Critic Company and Messrs. Brainard H. Warner and William E. Edmonston, trustees, as defendants. Messrs. Warner and Edmonston are the trustees named in the trust deed given to secure the bonds of the company. The bill says that on July 9, 1890, Stilson The bill says that on July 9, 1830, Stilson Hutchins recovered in the Supreme Court of the District against the defendant, the Washington Critic Company, a judgment for the sum of $8,823.73, with interest from January 23, 1890, upon which judgment a credit of $7,000 was entered on the 12th day of November, 1890, as of the 10th day of November, 1890; that thereafter the judgment was duly entered to the use of

That since the 12th day of November, 1890, the company has been publishing an evening newspaper in the city of Washington at a loss of about $2,000 a month, and is now being issued at about the same rate of loss; that on the 2d day of May, 1891, a further judgment for the sum of $772.72, with interest from the 19th day of July, 1890, was recovered against the defendant company in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia at the suit of Smith, Dixon & Co., and the company is otherwise indebted to various persons and corporations, and that the entire property and assets of the company are insufficient to pay and discharge its just debts and liabilities.

That the company so being wholly insolvent and utterly unable to meet its just debts and liabilities if it be permitted to continue the conduct of its affairs as at present the entire value of the franchise in "The United Press" will be expended in meeting the current expenses of the company, and the losses heretofore indicated will be made good, if at all, by further issue of the bonds, thus impairing, if not wholly destroying, the value of the complainant's judgment and excluding all other creditors of the company than the holders of the bonds from the realization of anything on account of their several indedtednesses.

He said to a Star reporter that he was making a survey of the field, but was not yet ready to make any statement as to the condition of the company's affairs. Mr. Davis said it was his intention to settle Mr. Davis said it was his intention to settle the affairs of the company as speedily as may be consistent with a proper regard to the interests of all concerned. He will, he said, dispose of the property of the company with the approval of the court and under the direction of the court disburse the proceeds among those having claims upon the assets of the concern.

He had, he said, already been approached by a person desiring to make an offer for the company's property, but as he had not had time to estimate the value of the property himself he had not been able to name any figure. When Duncan was arrested he said that if he had been left alone a minute or two longer he would have taken his own life, adding that it would have taken his own life, adding that it was a prearranged plan between him and his wife. From the position of the parties when found this seems possible. Mrs. Duncan must have lain still while her husband was inflicting the injuries, as the stone or rock in his hands was so heavy that he could not possibly have wielled it with one hand.

Information which comes here by correspondence and through politicians, who always keep a keen eye on the empire state, indicates that the friends of Mr. Cleveland are beginning to arouse themselves and to prepare to show their power. Mr. Hill's purposes are too well defined to leave it a matter of doubt that if they are going to control the state delegation in '92 they must fight for it. While Hill was getting control of the machinery of New York politics the Cleveland men saw so little to fear in his defend himself from the charges against him.

Thomas Duncan, an Episcopal ministhe party policy. When Cleveland was in the White House the use of a two-cent postage Church in this city. From here he went to the party policy. When Cleveland was in the White House the use of a two-cent postage stamp upon the right sort of a letter could have blocked Mr. Hill's schemes, and some of the Cleveland men advised against permitting the whole party affairs of the state being put into his hands, but Mr. Cleveland refused to interfere to prevent it. Now, as some of those thoroughly acquainted with the state politics explain the situation, Mr. Hill has the official organization completely in his own hands, but the old guard, those who canvassed the state for Tilden and who have never gone through the state with a purpose in view that they have not accomplished it, are for Cleveland.

The OLD GUARD AROUSED. White House the use of a two-cent postage stamp upon the right sort of a letter could have blocked Mr. Hill's schemes, and some of the Cleveland men advised against permitting the whole party affairs of the state being put into his hands, but Mr. Cleveland refused to interfere to prevent it. THE OLD GUARD AROUSED.

It is the "old guard" that is now being aroused. Mr. Hill, in trying for too much, in trying to force things to go his way too rapidly and to exercise dictatorship too soon, has made enemies of some who were formerly his friends and has greatly embarrassed himself. There are certain influences from the outside being company at a salary of $2,000 per year. For the better able to battle against Cleveland. Men who want Gorman to be nominated, Campbell men and radical silverites are all giving Hill all the encouragement they can. But the thing which is generally spoken of now as Mr. Cleveland's weakness may prove his strength before the convention, and will certainly arouse those who beheve in him to the necessary activity at this time and is leading some who have not been strongly favorable to him to believe that it is important that he should be upheld. The fact that he had possession of the field, as was conceded on all hands, before he wrote his silver letter to the Reform Club of New York would, it is thought, make his defeat, were he defeated in the next convention, attributable to that letter, and it would be a blow at the conservatism which he represents.

would be a blow at the conservatism which he represents.

CLEVELAND'S NOMINATION ALMOST A RECESSITY.

A realization of this situation, it is said, is leading to a feeling in the east, particularly in New York, that his nomination is almost a necessity. The first move to accomplish this is to make sure of the New York delegation, and a very shrewd game of politics is being played to this end. It is believed that Mr. Hill's present position with relation to the party ormate in an outbreak that would result in injury. to this end. It is believed that Mr. Hill's present position with relation to the party organization is favorable to his overthrow as far as relates to his ambition to get into the presidency is concerned. It is asserted with great positiveness that Whitney, Brice, Don Dickinson, Scott, Vilas and even Gorman are all working to bring about Cleveland's nomination, and that they will have Smith M. Weed's assistance also in the work for the New York delegation.
